

Sam measures 2 sides of a square.

She measures one side using millimetres
and the other side using centimetres.

The numbers that she writes are different.

True

All sides of a square are equal in length but if you measure in different units, you will get different answers.

